Reception to Dean Hickey.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew J. Cook on Thursday and Saturday evenings entertained about fifty friends in honor of the Very Rev. John J. Hickey, who leaves St. Mary's Church this week to assume charge of a large parish in New York. Among those present at the receptions were the Rev. M. J. Larkin, pastor of St. Gabriel's Church, New Rochelle, and Father Quinn, head of the Indian boarding school in the country. The evening

"If I am nominated and the outcome on the ticket do not enthrall me the same ideas that I do with regard to state government I most certainly shall decline."

The governor's emphatic declaration that he will refuse a renomination unless others on the ticket act in complete accord with his views led to a report that Attorney General Charles D. Newton, Secretary of State John J. Lyons, and State Engineer Frank M. Williams, will be renominated at the Republican

This anniversary was the golden wedding anniversary and something that very few couples are fortunate enough to celebrate. So the flowers used on this occasion, and there were quantities of them in evidence, were yellow in color.

Fifty long years ago C. M. Woolsey, a lifelong resident of this place, married Miss Sarah Frances Newman, who was born in Newburyport, Mass., and since their marriage they have resided in Milton. During the Civil War Mr. Woolsey was one of the loyal Americans and went to the front and returned with the title of captain.

The many friends of the couple wish to congratulate them on this happy occasion and extend wishes for many more happy anniversaries.

I am asked to head it. I shall not decline if such a ticket is not required. I shall not consider it worth the perforce and shall most certainly decline nomination if it should be tendered.

"I shall not seek to influence or control or to prevent the nomination of anyone and I hope that each delegate in the convention will be free to act and vote precisely as he pleases, certainly without regard to any wish of mine and I trust that my friend of mine will feel that he need not be influenced by any views or he may fancy that I entertain, only person whose actions I can have any right to attempt to control myself. The ceremony was solemnized at the Methodist Church of Clintondale. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. John J. Lyons, pastor of the church. The wedding was attended only by the immediate families and intimate friends of the couple owing to the recent death of the bridegroom's father. The bride was charmingly attired in a gown of white georgette with trimmings of orange blossoms and a veil of tulle, caught with orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of bride's roses. GIFTS TO HOSPITAL BUILDING FUND

Those Who Have Contributed Since May 11—Estimate Found Too Small as Construction Begins.

The staff of the City of Kingston Hospital take pleasure in reporting the following contributions toward the building fund of the hospital. These contributions have been given since the publication in The Freeman on May 11.

The contractors have begun building and it is found that the cost of construction exceeds the original estimation. Further donations toward this much needed improvement will be gratefully accepted.

Laxatives Replaced

By the Use of Nujol

Nujol is a lubricant—not a medicine or laxative—so cannot gripe. When you are constipated, not enough of Nature's lubricating liquid is produced in the bowel to keep the food waste soft and moving.

Doctors prescribe Nujol because it acts like this natural lubricant and thus replaces it. Try

MISS DOWN INSTRUCTOR IN BINGHAMTON SCHOOL

In Charge of Course in "Missionary Education."

The press of Binghamton contains this week the following items of interest to the many friends of Miss Emma Down, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Down of Pine Grove avenue, this city:

"The Binghamton School of Religious Education is to start Monday, September 25th, at the Tabernacle M. E. Church. There will be two class periods each evening.

"The courses to be offered this year and the instructors are: Psychology, the Rev. Charles E. Petty; Primary Methods, Miss Emmons; Missionary Education, Miss Down; Intermediate Methods, Clarence H. Shepherd; Week-day Religious School, the Rev. J. Elmer Russell; Old Testament History, the Rev. Fred H. Church; New Testament Content, the Rev. Floyd N. Darling."

"The Binghamton School of Religious Education will offer to those enrolled the privilege of taking a course in Missionary Education. Miss Emma Down is to teach the course.

"We as Americans and Christian Americans," she says, "must be citizens of the world, since the great war made this old world so small that all races of men are neighbors. People everywhere in these days are restless. Individual and national selfishness seek to destroy the world's happiness. Is there no way to make the human family happy? Our answer is, Make it Christian. The great need is for world Christians and those may be trained in our church schools, when we conceive aright the value and place of missionary education in our program of religious education. It is with this in mind that a course in Missionary Education is being offered this year in the Binghamton School of Religious Education."

Miss Down graduated from Goucher College, Baltimore, Md., and later gained her master's degree from Columbia University, majoring in religious education. She has been the director of religious education in the Clinton Avenue Methodist Church for the last year.

Knew It Was Jimmy.
In my high school days, writes a correspondent of the Chicago Journal, I had my nose injured in a football game. Since then I have had trouble breathing through my nose. When I snore I make a very peculiar noise, of which all members of the family are aware. One day when I was not expected, I arrived home late at night. As I did not wish to arouse the family, I made myself comfortable on the porch sofa and went to sleep. I had hardly fallen asleep when I was aroused to find the entire family asking me questions and showering me with greetings. My father, who is a light sleeper and whose bedroom window faces the porch, heard me snore and woke the entire family and neighbors, shouting, "Jimmy is home! Jimmy is home!"

Alkali in Shampoos Bad For Washing Hair

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali, which is very injurious, as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle.

The best thing to use is Mulsified coconut oil shampoo, for this is pure and entirely greaseless. It is very cheap and beats anything else all to pieces. You can get Mulsified at any drug store, and a few ounces will last the whole family for months.

Two or three teaspoonsful of Mulsified in a cup of glass with a little warm water is all that is required. It makes an abundance of rich creamy lather, cleanses thoroughly and rinses out easily. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is soft, fresh looking, bright, fluffy, wavy and easy to handle. Besides, it loosens and takes out every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff. Be sure your druggist gives you Mulsified.—Advertisement

OF THE ATONEMENT DISTINCT JEWISH HOLIDAY.

The Day of Atonement or Yom Kippur as it is named in Hebrew, falls due this year Monday, October 2, and is observed by the Jewish people in all parts of the world with unvarying solemnity from sunset Sunday evening, October 1, until sundown of October 2. No other holiday of the synagogue is invested with such importance as is attached to this day of soul-searching and repentance holiday of the synagogue, one that is most pervasive and states in fullest measure the ultimate goal and purpose of Israel's striving. The Messianic fulfillment of the Jews as well as humanity's destiny is forevisioned in the liturgy of this service.

The ceremonial observance of the Day of Atonement requires the worshiper to withdraw from all worldly cares, and, forgetful of the worldly affairs which have occupied him during the year, give himself up to God in thoughts of prayer and repentance.

One phase of the ritual in the modern synagogue is devoted to the remembrance of the dear ones called to their eternal reward.

She is survived by her husband and one son Hiram Hoyt, Jr., of Stony Clove, Nott and one daughter, Mrs. Benjamin Bishop of New York city. Funeral services were held in the Wesleyan Church at Willow on Saturday, September 23 at 2 p. m. Interment in the Willow cemetery.

The funeral of Mrs. Barbara Lay was held this morning from the home of her son Charles Lay on the Saugerties road at 9:30 and 10 o'clock at St. Peter's Church, where a solemn requiem Mass was offered, city being the celebrant, the Rev. John A. Nageleisen of New York city being the celebrant, the Rev. Edward Hixson of Rosendale the deacon and the Rev. George Vane of Sackville the sub-deacon. The services were largely attended by the floral tributes were many and the floral tributes were many and beautiful. The society of Christian Mothers attended the services in a body. The bearers were Theodore Weber, Peter P. Zach, Peter Bruck, Frank Stenglein, David Krushner and Grover Henderson. Fathers Nageleisen, Ostermann, Higgins and Vane accompanied the remains to St. Peter's cemetery, where the committal services were held and the interment made in the family plot.

TURKS COOL TO ALLIED PROPOSAL

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Constantinople, Sept. 23.—The Allied Near East peace conditions, as received by wireless, are not acceptable to the Turkish Nationalists as a whole. It was reported here today. Kemal and his advisers who are meeting at Smyrna, object chiefly to the Allied proposal that the Dardanelles shall be "demilitarized." The Allied note, as a document, has not been received at Ankara.

SOCIETY NOTES.

and Miss Marshall, sold beauty pins. The bridegroom presented his best man with a fountain pen and his ushers with gold pencils. Both Dr. and Mrs. Benson are popular young people of Poughkeepsie. Mrs. Benson is a graduate of the Kingston High School and she has been for the past five years associated with the First National Bank in Poughkeepsie as bookkeeper. Dr. Benson has been a practicing physician in Poughkeepsie for the past three years. He is a graduate of the University of Vermont and served as a captain in the medical corps of the army for three years during the World War. The couple have received a number of beautiful gifts of silver, cut glass and linen. Following the reception they left on a wedding trip. The bride's going-away costume being a gown of gray crepe serge, with a blue velvet Giverny cape and a picture hat of black velvet with hand painted flowers. On their return they will make their home in Poughkeepsie. Among the out of town guests at the wedding were Mrs. Helen Lund, Elmer Lund, Carl Lund, Rudolph Lund, Miss Irene Ready, Miss Nord and Miss Anna Lund, all of New York city; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Cole of Newburgh; Mr. and Mrs. Edward Cole of Garrison, and Mrs. Charles Orr of Erie, Pa.—Poughkeepsie Star.

Fifth Wedding Anniversary.

Last Wednesday evening a few friends and relatives gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Erving Brown at 131 Hasbrouck avenue, the occasion being their fifth wedding anniversary. The hosts received many beautiful and useful gifts. Victrola selections were played to which the guests danced and enjoyed a very sociable evening, after which they departed wishing Mr. and Mrs. Brown many more happy years of married life.

Celebrated Golden Wedding.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Marsh of Solomons, Maryland, parents of Mrs. Frank W. Thompson of West Chestnut street, are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Thompson. On Sunday, September 24, Mr. and Mrs. Thompson celebrated their golden wedding at the home of their daughter, it being an especially delightful event. Between the hours of 4 and 7 o'clock, many Kingston relatives and friends of the juvenile bride and groom called to extend their congratulations and express their best wishes for many more happy celebrations of the wedding anniversary. Mrs. Thompson, the bride of so many years, is a sister of John and Wesley Gregory of this city and has a wide circle of old friends here. There were some forty guests present, among them Mrs. Henry W. Niner of Maryland, another daughter of the bride and groom, who were the recipients of a profusion of flowers, the delightful home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Thompson being for the day quite converted into a bower of rich autumnal bloom, the predominant color being golden. And it was, most appropriately, a golden autumnal day. There were two bouquets of fifty exquisite golden roses, and several gold jewelry and gold were among the gifts to the celebrating bride. During the afternoon there was music and a buffet luncheon was served. The two little folks representing the fourth generation of Mr. and Mrs. Thompson's family were little Miss Helen Cora Marsh, daughter of Major and Mrs. Raymond Marsh of West Point, and wee Patsie Ann Gates, son of Mr. and Mrs. Copeland Gates of Kingston and Katrine.

MISS HIRST DIES AFTER ACCIDENT
Head Hit Rocks When Car Went Down Bank at Coxson Bridge—Two Other Women, One the Driver, Seriously Hurt.
Miss Emma Josephine Hirst, daughter of Edwin H. Hirst of No. 23 Pearl street, died at the Benedictine Hospital Sunday afternoon as the result of injuries received when the Hirst sedan driven by Miss Anne E. Morgan of the same address plunged through the railing near the entrance to the Coxson bridge at Lawrenceville Saturday afternoon and down the steep embankment to the creek.
The sedan, which was owned by Miss Hirst, had as its occupants Miss Hirst, her father, Mrs. John Hancock and Miss Morgan, all of No. 203 Pearl street. They had been taking a pleasure trip along some of the country roads near Kingston and about 5:30 o'clock had reached the vicinity of Lawrenceville. There is a sharp turn and a slight grade on the approach to the bridge.
Miss Morgan was negotiating the turn carefully when her finger caught in the gas throttle on the steering wheel and as she turned the steering wheel the throttle opened and the excess of gas accelerated the speed of the car. The sudden spurt confused Miss Morgan who in the excitement of the moment evidently forgot to use her brakes. The result was that the car plunged through the fence and down the steep incline to the creek, about 15 feet below.
A small maple sapling which the sedan straddled in its downward course to the creek checked its speed and prevented it from striking the jagged rocks which line the creek.
Miss Hirst either jumped through the window or was hurled through it and landed on the rocks on her head. The other members of the party were thrown around in the car and were unable to explain how Miss Hirst from her position in the car could have been thrown through the window.
Dr. John F. Larkin, who was among the first to reach the scene, found Miss Hirst unconscious. The Grogan ambulance service of this city responded promptly to a call and its two ambulances brought the members of the party to the Benedictine Hospital.
Miss Hirst was found to have sustained two fractures of the skull, one at the base and another near the temple.
Mrs. Hancock sustained an injury to her spine and severe lacerations of the face and hands from broken glass. Miss Morgan received several broken ribs, an injury to the chest and was considerably cut by broken glass. It is feared she also may have sustained internal injuries.
Mr. Hirst was severely shaken up but appeared to have escaped other injury except nervous shock.
Miss Hirst remained unconscious until Sunday afternoon when she died. Her funeral will take place from the funeral chapel of A. Carr & Son, No. 1 Pearl street, on Tuesday evening at eight o'clock and the remains will be taken to New York City for interment in Woodlawn Cemetery on Wednesday.

WOMEN IN VARIOUS TRADES
Fair Sex Has Traveled Far From What Was Considered Proper in the Victorian Era.
There are today in New York state 789 women in the building trades including women carpenters, electricians, house painters, glaziers, paper hangers, plasterers, plumbers, and even stone cutters. There are also women working as common laborers for the railroads.
We have had factory workers, to be sure, for long years, but in the past they have been chiefly employed as semi-skilled operators in clothing, textile and similar industries. Today New York state boasts 2,810 in lumber and furniture work; 6,802 doing semi-skilled tasks in steel and iron and 3,217 working among the other metals; while 1,107 work in clay, stone or glass. The combined list of mill workers and skilled operators runs considerably more than 900,000 for the state.
Such tasks are not so anti-Victorian as quarrying, mining, stonemasonry, of course, in which women are also engaged, but they are still a far cry from the kitchen stove, the parlor dust cloth and the nursery.—Florence Guy Woolston in the New Republic.

LIQUOR AT SCENE OF AUTO ACCIDENT
Merente, Held on Bail After Colliding With Osborn, Deities Ownership of Stuff Found Near His Car.
Sheriff Koits has two five gallon tin cans of liquor which a chemist will analyze to determine whether it is hooch, and Joseph Merente, Jr., of Allaben is out on bail in $1,000 to await a hearing before Police Justice Henry E. McKenzie at Port Even on Tuesday at 2 p. m.
Merente with a friend, Robert F. Agrese of the Bronx, Saturday evening while in an automobile ran into a car in which was Henry W. Osborn, postmaster at Ulster Park, with his wife and the mother of Mrs. Osborn, wrecking the Osborn car. The accident happened near the Ezra Van Aken farm near Port Even, and Merente and Agrese were detained by Mr. Osborn, and Holt N. Winfield who happened along, and they turned them over to State Trooper Lounsberry who placed them under arrest charging them with violation of the state traffic law in running an automobile with but one headlight. As Merente was driving the car when the accident happened he was arraigned and pleaded not guilty and later his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Merente of Allaben, who had been notified by telephone arrived and gave a bond in $1,000 for their son's appearance before Justice McKenzie at Port Even on Tuesday, September 25, for a hearing.
Agrese, who it is said owned the car, was not held. Trooper Lounsberry in searching Merente found a revolver in a pocket, but Merente showed a permit from County Judge Fowler to carry it. The two five gallon tin cans of liquor found in the motor box in which the cans were packed was found on the roadway near the Merente car just after the accident by Mr. Winfield, after Merente had gone to the car to get something out of it. He denied, as did Agrese, having any knowledge of the case and its contents.

IMPORT BEADS BY BILLIONS
Demand for Those Ornaments by the Women of the United States Seems Insatiable.
Beads and beads must belong together in the mind of the modern woman. At any rate, ten strings of beads are worn today when one was worn before the war and before the vote. Beads by the billions are being imported. This year's record promises to run far ahead of last year's, and last year's record was worth a glance.
To make any comment upon the advanced and emancipated woman's interest in the ornament that is usually set down as a South sea savage's notion of an all-but-complete costume is quite unnecessary. The figures speak for themselves.
From central Europe, from France, from the shores of the entire Mediterranean, from all Judea, from the three great countries of the Far East, the making of beads for the United States is a big business, declares a New York Sun writer. Not satisfied with the quantity that can be turned out with everybody working at the job of decorating the dresses and the hats and the shoes of millions of American women, the demand for something different has made the best dealers set the very South sea savage to scraping up the seashells from the shores of lonely isles that are all but lost on any average map.
To the national bill for fire materials could be added the cost of all imported cigarettes and then the total would be $35,000,000 short of meeting the total outlay for feminine ornaments. In spite of the increase in the amount of coffee imported, the cup that cheers America at breakfast time costs far less than the beads that women wear. About $66,000,000 less. The comedy continues throughout the whole list of life's lesser luxuries.
Chewing Gum Gave Him Away.
A gob of chewing gum has disrupted a family. In a recent divorce case the wife, who was suing, testified that she was sure that her husband was unfaithful, but did not know for certain to which one of several charmers he was paying attention.
One morning she found a gob of gum that he had been chewing the night before when he returned home late. In the lump of gum was the fatal red hair. She caused a watch to be placed on the woman who had locks to match the hair she found and discovered that her husband was a frequent visitor at the red-head's apartment and got a divorce in record time. Talk about your detective stories, what a plot!—Portland Oregonian.
Many Breeds of Dogs.
Authorities list 51 breeds of dogs as comprising the category found at the leading dog shows held under the auspices of recognized kennel clubs. These are all that are used in the ordinary vocations or sports of life.

BACK TO ICE AGE
Date of Human Being's Appearance in America.
Probability Is That He Crossed From Asia When the Continents Were Connected.
Leaving aside for the present the tooth of the Nebraska "ape-man," no trace of human beings other than homo sapiens has ever been found in America. A million years ago the "promises of men" lived in Africa, in Malaysia, in Asia itself, and even in Europe. We see dim remains of a whole troop of extinct humans behind the horizon of the present, the short upstanding Java Pithecanthropus, a man in body but an ape in head; the African ape man, tall, erect and dark skinned, but with no forehead; the heavy-jawed Heidelberg man, a creature whose children had mouths as big as those of large adults of today; the Jog-faced Pithecanthropus, and squat, stoop-shouldered Neanderthals, who bobbed along on the outside of their feet, peering with timid, furtive eyes from beneath their shaggy brows.
None of these men ever saw America. Our continent was devoid of human habitation until the middle of the Ice age. Man came into America only yesterday, in a geological sense. He appeared here 50,000 or 60,000 years ago at most. And the surprising fact still remains that he was the American Indian, everywhere from Patagonia to Alaska when he did come.
There are different kinds of Indians. Some have round heads, some have long heads; there are Indians with wide cheeks and there are Indians with narrow faces. Yet the more the evidence is studied, the stronger is the conviction borne in upon the minds of science that Indians are derived from one common parent family.
Where did they come from? A glance at the shores of Asia opposite us reveals Mongols. A bridge with Asia in the past there certainly was; civilizations on both sides are much the same, but now the people are different. Culturally the northeastern Indians are more related to European white men of the Ice age than to the rest of America. The land bridge of Atlantis may have been above water when the first tribes of Indians reached America.
The answer to this riddle lies in Asia. Indians are Asiatic, but in most of their former homes they have been submerged by the yellow men whom we call Mongols. Historians will record that the 40,000 years covering about the Twentieth century A. D. saw the rise of two rival races of men, who totally eclipsed and outdistanced all other races, the white Aryan and the yellow Mongol.
We know how our race has grown. The strides of the Mongols are even greater. They are now spreading with much rapidity; they have either crowded out or absorbed the native peoples over most of eastern Asia. They are even in America as Eskimos. Mongol blood is thirsty; it drinks up the blood of other races with whom it intermarries, leaving only slant eyes, flat faces and high heads.
The Eskimos are much later comers to our shores than the Indians. They arrived here only a few score centuries ago. They are still coming. The whole ocean littoral from Greenland to British Columbia knows them. Men of unmistakable Indian cast have been found in our off-the-way valleys of Siberia, in Formosa, in the Philippines, and even in Sumatra. There was a time when eastern Asia was inhabited by the prototype of American Indians.
Mongols came down from the highlands of Tibet, and have all but eradicated their breed. They would have followed them to America but for the rapid sinking of Bering strait, which separated the two continents and made the migration wait for the invention of means of navigation.—Chicago Tribune.
Radio's Prodecessor.
Broadcasting wireless as a news service is merely a development of a plan inaugurated many years ago, in 1893, in Budapest by the establishment of the Telefor Home or Telephone News-teller, which soon counted its subscribers by thousands, at the rate of a penny a day. News was collected in the ordinary way, printed by lithography on long strips of paper and telephoned by specially trained "stenographers." It provided also for advertising. For one florin the stenographers would read off advertisements for 12 seconds, carefully sandwiching them between interesting items of news so that the subscriber would not discern them for fear of missing something he really wanted to hear.—Montreal Gazette.
Vaccination Must Be Thorough.
In order to be of value for protective purpose against smallpox the operation of vaccination must be thoroughly carried out. The more thorough the vaccination the more pronounced will be the immunity and the longer will it be effective.
The examination of smallpox patients in hospitals has shown that those who have only a small scar of vaccination are more numerous, and have the disease more severely, than those who show a higher number of scars. Imperfect vaccination in a community is almost worse than no vaccination at all, for the immunity is short-lived and the individual who imagines himself protected is not really so.—New York World.
The Whence of the Alphabet.
According to Dr. C. E. Moule, the Egyptologist, the alphabet was not invented by the Phoenicians, the merely "lifted" twenty-two letters from the Egyptians, and then spread them as their own through Greece and Italy.

Helping the Judge.
It was his first case, and the lawyer, whose zeal probably outweighed his learning, was arguing a case in a local court.
"My contention, your honor," he said, "is that the lower court made an error because the verdict is against the weight of evidence."
"We can't hear that," said the judge, meaning that even a rising young lawyer's opinion is not evidence.
"Very well, then," said the young man of the law, who entirely missed the point, "if your honor will listen I will speak a little louder."—London Answers.

GUARDING THE HOUSE

William was as fond of adventure and plumes and fun as any one, but there was nothing about him that was mean or unkind.

Now a lady had gone away on a visit. She had not been away for quite awhile. Before she had left she had looked forward so much to this visit.

She had been marking off the days on a calendar and counting when the day would come that she would be on her way.

And at last she had gone. She had left the house carefully locked up and she had put everything away. She loved her house. It had been in the family for many years. Her grandmother had been born in the house and so had her mother and her sisters and brothers and it was, indeed, a lovely house, which seemed so much a part of the family that it was almost like a real person.

She actually enjoyed house-cleaning time because the house looked so beautiful when it was house-cleaned. And she loved to give parties in the house, for the house always dressed up so nicely.

The house was so glad of a fresh coat of paint once in awhile, though it was a good house and looked as well as it possibly could even when it did need freshening.

And the house was always so comforting to her. In the winter the big fireplace was so cheery. In the summer the rooms and the halls were so cool and so restful.

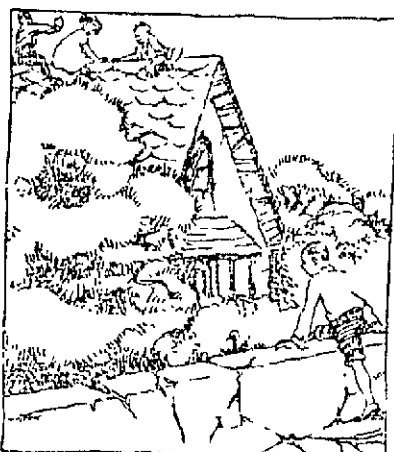

She was not sad about leaving the house, for she knew it would be there to welcome her when she came back. In fact she was perfectly happy about leaving.

She had grown a little lonely, for the house couldn't speak, though it did the best it could to act as company for her. It really did remarkably well for a house, too. And she was looking forward to this visit—had been looking forward to it for a long time, as I've said.

That was the ideal thing! To go away on jolly visits but to have the dear, faithful house to come back to as her beloved home. So she had gone away on her visit.

Now, boys and girls all liked the lady. The lady liked boys and girls. The lady thought very highly of William, who was an extremely nice boy, and William thought very highly of the lady.

Now, when the lady had started off on her visit William had said, "I will keep an eye on the house." And the lady had been pleased at that. William not only kept one eye on the house, but two!

One day after the lady had gone away, two boys and a girl broke into the house. They broke through a window and in they went.

They ran through the rooms with their muddy shoes. They pulled things about, they went up in the garret and played with the lovely old curiosities which the lady so loved.

They dragged things out of the bureau drawers. They marched through the rooms, and then they went out of the garret door to the roof.

William was looking about the house. He had not seen anyone go in when, suddenly, he saw the two boys and the girl on the roof.

He knew who they were, too, and that made him all the angrier, because he thought it was so terribly wrong for any one who knew the lady to break into her beloved house. He rushed into the house and down he brought them all. And how he talked to them! And how he scolded them!

He told them what a wicked thing it was to go into anyone's house and that they were going where they had no right, and that they had no more right to go into the lady's house than she would have had the right to break into theirs and use their toys and smash their engines when they went away.

And especially he told them that, of all things in the world, nothing was any worse than hurting what some one else loved. For they had not cared for the lady's house and they had crushed some flowers in getting into the window and were ready to play with anything they saw.

Shamefacedly they went out of the house. After all, there had been no fun in it! And they felt very mean and very treacherous to the lady who had gone away.

William had guarded the house! William was loyal! William was very fine!

WAYS WITH VEGETABLES

The summer squash is such a delicious vegetable, but is so often poorly seasoned. Try this method: Use only the very tender squash, remove the stems and lay them in a kettle with just water enough to keep them from burning. When tender drain and boil down the water to a thick syrup, add butter, salt and pepper and pour over the squash cut in portions for serving. Prepared in this way the delicate flavor of the squash is obtained.

Another delicious squash dish is prepared as above, adding cream of milk to the sauce, thickening with a little flour and adding one-half cupful of grated or finely minced cheese; when melted pour over the squash.

Cucumber Sauce.—Care two cucumbers, cut in quarters lengthwise, remove the seeds if large, chop fine, then squeeze dry. Season with salt, paprika and vinegar and stir in one-half cupful of thick cream whipped until stiff. Serve with boiled fish. A small grated onion may be added if the flavor is liked.

Fried Green Tomatoes.—Cut off both ends of large green tomatoes, cut in thin slices, roll in flour and cook in hot butter in a frying pan. Sprinkle with salt, pepper and sugar and cook until brown. Fry a sliced onion with them if you like the flavor and serve with fish balls.

Wilted Cucumbers.—For those who find the juice of the cucumber disagreeable the following method will be enjoyed: Large seeded cucumbers may be used for this dish. Pare the cucumbers, then cut them in half-inch slices and pare each slice as thinly as possible from the outside to the seed part, making a long, thin, curling strip. Cover with cold water and add two teaspoonfuls of salt for each cucumber. Let them soak for two hours, drain and squeeze them in a soft cloth until dry. Toss in a salad bowl and dress with cayenne, oil and vinegar and serve very cold.

Jack Spratt and His Wife Never Ate Bread —

For they couldn't separate the lean from the fat

These two poor, obstinate people had never heard of a balanced food where lean and fat are so well apportioned as to give correct nourishment and proper weight to each person.

Breda is the one perfectly balanced food, providing a nourishment that results in correct weight; live, healthy tissues and sturdy muscle, together with irresistible flavor.

MRS. SALZMANN'S MOTHER'S BREAD gains materially in nutritive value from its shortening of Pure Leaf Lard, that gives the human body the power to act as its own furnace, generating the heat that keeps it warm and comfortable even in bitter weather.

Just the proper amount of this pure shortening gives to MRS. SALZMANN'S MOTHER'S BREAD its velvety texture, and makes it a richer, more delicious loaf—so tender and palatable that even our old friends the Spratts would find it hard to resist.

LIFE'S GREAT DAY

To East Indian Girl, Marriage Means Emancipation.

Prospective Bride's Outlook Changes Almost From Moment of Betrothal — Wedding "Ring" on Wrist.

From the moment of her betrothal the Indian girl's experiences gradually change, and from the day of her marriage there grows about her an atmosphere of calmness and reserve. Even her appearance undergoes a change. Her hair is parted, no longer childishly brushed back, and at the parting there is a touch of vermilion. Her head is now always covered with a veil. On the bridal evening the bride is brought before her young husband, and they are told that the moment is auspicious for their first look at each other. It is the parents of the bride and the bridegroom who arrange the preliminaries of marriage, and husband and wife see each other for the first time only when the ceremony is performed. The old Vedic fire is used to celebrate the rites of the union. This is a custom that had its origin in the sacred Vedas, the books compiled by Manu, whose name is revered throughout the length and breadth of India. The girl flings a garland of flowers about the neck of her bridegroom. In exquisite symbolism of the bond that is to hold them; and finally they take seven steps together, hand in hand, while the priest chants appropriate texts for each stage of life. Such is the wedding, writes "An Indian Prince" in Current History.

The young wife's feet are unshod, and the gold wedding bracelet on the left wrist supplies the only hint of girlish vanity. But she has other jewels. Those that she wears daily are of plain gold, more or less richly worked, but on her wedding night she wears the sari, or triple coronal, set with gems. Arms and neck are gay with flashing stones. All these are her dowry, given by her father to be her personal property. Not even her husband can touch them without her consent, though he will add to them occasionally at festive moments. These more elaborate ornaments, however, are worn only on great occasions, but meanwhile the silver anklets, the golden necklace and a few bangles are enough for daily use. The wife knows her right to her own ornaments quite well, yet often an Indian wife will voluntarily give up the whole of this little resource in order that her husband may weather some financial crisis, and an Indian mother will make the same sacrifice in order to give her son an education. The one thing from which the wife will never part, however, unless widowhood lays icy hand upon her life, is that ring of iron covered with gold and worn on the left wrist, which is the sign of the indissoluble bond of her marriage—her wedding ring, in fact.

Rocket's Aid Bridge Building.

The best suspension bridge in England is at Clifton. It is 702 feet long and 31 feet wide, and more than 200 feet above the River Avon. It is said that the cable was put in place by the aid of a kite. First a string was sent over by a kite, then a heavier cord was pulled across, then a heavier and heavier, and finally the cable.

A more unusual way was adopted for starting the great bridge across the Zambesi river in South Africa. The bridge is the highest in the world, 400 feet above the water, and runs from cliff to cliff.

A rocket to which a string was attached was used at the beginning of construction. The rocket took the cord across, the cord was used for hauling across a wire and the wire was used to pull over a small cable. On this a truck crossed, carrying the main cable of the bridge, which is 200 feet long, and the greatest engineering wonder in South Africa.

Bare Walls Spoil Radio Transmission.

Bare walls are not the best thing in the world for the radiophone broadcasting studio, says the Scientific American. Recently, one of the leading studios moved into a large, beautifully decorated room, with paneled walls and smooth, unbroken ceiling. Previous to that time the studio held forth in what had been the cloakroom of a factory office, where the bare walls had to be hidden with draperies and rugs, while the ceiling was broken up by beams.

However, the results obtained with the old studio room were excellent, for the reason that there was practically no echo or sound reflection from the walls and ceiling. The new studio room will have to be provided with tapestries or some other form of sound-absorbing hangings in order to reduce echo.

The Callisthenes of Relativity.

Professor Einstein was recently expounding his theory of relativity to an audience on the left bank of the Rhine, and as the majority of his hearers were women he deemed it necessary to use the simplest of illustrations. He declared that the system of co-ordinates finds its most perfect realization "in the act of a man who succeeded in taking off his waistcoat without removing his coat."

This simple manner of illustrating such an abstract theory was keenly appreciated, and at night at home the few gentlemen who had attended the 5 o'clock lecture, to realize relativity, tried to take off their waistcoats without removing their coats.

It is not told how they succeeded!

No Call to Kick.

THE OFFICE CAT

Double Trouble.

"How fast can your car go?" "Just fast enough," replied Mr. Chuggins, "to break the road rules and not fast enough to keep ahead of the cop."

When a man is doing something he knows he cannot afford to do, he can always prove that it is somebody else's fault.

Cuch.

"This cold weather chills me to the bone."

"You should wear a thicker hat."

"Who's that guy you were talkin' so nice to?"

"Aw, that's me old family drug-dish."

"What did he say?"

"No."

Three of a Kind.

She was telling an acquaintance about her girl friends.

"Yes," she said, "my friend Maud is only 25, but she's been married three times, and all her husbands have been named William."

"You don't say," replied he.

"Why, she must be a regular Bill collector."

Girls who want to follow the latest style and have their names embroidered on their stockings must either have short names or long legs. It's one or the other.

A service without a smile is like a prohibition beverage—it lacks "kick."

NO EXCUSE FOR CITY ORDINANCE

Court Condemns One of Canfield Administration's Regulatory Measures as Existing Without Reason, Declaring It Unconstitutional.

Supreme Court Justice Rosch in his opinion, is brought for an injunction restraining the defendant, chief of police of the city of Kingston, from interfering with the plaintiff's conduct of his business in carrying on a proposed auction sale and enjoining the defendant in his official capacity from enforcing or attempting to enforce an ordinance forbidding an auction sale after sundown.

The plaintiff is a resident and taxpayer in the city of Kingston, and conducts a jewelry store on his premises at No. 37 North Front street. He owns a jewelry stock worth between six and seven thousand dollars which he is anxious to dispose of at public auction, and to carry out his intentions hired a professional auctioneer at considerable expense to sell the same to the highest bidder.

The plaintiff, after having planned his auction sale, learning that there was a city ordinance regulating such sales, and without having any information or knowledge as to the validity of the ordinance, applied to the defendant for a license to conduct the auction and was granted a permit to conduct the sale from eight in the morning to seven-thirty in the evening. He determined after the permit had been granted that it was not practical to conduct a successful auction, as contemplated, if he could not carry on the auction after the hour of seven-thirty in the evening. The plaintiff contends that he could not successfully dispose of his stock, as the sale could be carried on in the evening. The ordinance provides that a violation of its provisions constitutes a misdemeanor and seriously provides that the mayor and chief of police shall have authority to issue the license "except" to auction sales between sunset and eight o'clock a. m., which are forbidden. The plaintiff has been fined by the defendant that if plaintiff holds an auction sale after seven-thirty in the evening the defendant will enforce the ordinance and place plaintiff under arrest. The plaintiff alleges that thereby he will be exposed to public and irreparable injury to his business.

The plaintiff charges by his complaint that the ordinance is void and invalid, in that it is not a reasonable one and prohibits the carrying on in a lawful manner, of a legitimate business. It is claimed that the provision in the ordinance forbidding sales between sunset and eight o'clock a. m., is a violation of the constitution of the United States and the constitution of the state of New York, in that it deprives the plaintiff of his property rights, and deprives him of his right freely to pursue a lawful occupation.

Upon the complaint and affidavits setting forth the foregoing facts, among others, the plaintiff obtained an order to show cause why a temporary injunction should not be granted. On the return of such order to show cause, the plaintiff asks this application for a temporary injunction restraining the defendant from interfering with his conduct of business in carrying on an auction sale in the evening of any week day.

The question presented is whether the ordinance attempting to prohibit auction sales in the evening is a valid regulation. If it is, says Judge Rosch, this application should be denied. If it is not, then the plaintiff should not be interfered with in the legitimate pursuit of his business.

In taking up for consideration the law controlling the determination of this question, says Judge Rosch, it might be observed that auctions have been a method of carrying on and conducting the business of sale of goods for many centuries. The appointment of auctioneers, their regulation and control has been the subject of statutory control and has been one of the acknowledged police powers from colonial days to the present time. The constitutionality of the laws which have sought to regulate the licensing of auctioneers has been sustained by our courts.

The provisions of law of a general character at present in force regulate the licensing of auctioneers and prescribing the conduct of auctions are found in Article 2 of the General Business Law. The validity of such law is not before the court for consideration in this case, but reference is made to it for the purpose of pointing out the statutory regulations and control in force in relation to the conduct of this line of business. In this statute referred to are found provisions limiting and providing for the compensation of auctioneers. It provides also for the fixing by the common council of a city of the place within such city for the holding of auctions of certain classes of personal property. A bond is also required for the auctioneer in cities and the control and licensing of auctioneers by the comptroller is prescribed. There is also a provision in relation to penalty. Mock auctions are forbidden by Section 943 of the Penal Law.

From the foregoing references, says Judge Rosch, it can be seen that this class of business is something that should, in the judgment of the legislature, be subject to statutory control and consideration. The purpose of these laws is to prevent the conduct of auctions by dishonest individuals and the carrying on of fraudulent and deceitful practices. It hardly needs any argument, however, to justify the assertion that the business of sale is carried on by means of auction as legitimately as any other method. Long prior to the establishment of this country, sale by auction was conceded a local and a proper method of disposing of goods for the highest price one could obtain. The fact that the state has during its whole history undertaken to license and regulate the business or profession of an auctioneer does not classify such business or profession other than a legitimate one. There are many other professions which the state has undertaken to license and regulate, among them being the professions of law, medicine, dentistry and veterinary surgery. With all the safeguards thrown around the business of sale by auction, the question suggests itself: What is the true purpose of the provision of the ordinance forbidding auction sales after sundown? It is not an offense or evil because it is a legitimate method of doing business. It is hard to conceive that the conduct of an auction after sundown would affect the health, morals, safety or welfare of the community. If the ordinance were established for the purpose of stifling competition, then it was not the police power of the state granted to the city to license and regulate auctions and auctioneers. To justify the state or a municipality thereof to interpose its authority in behalf of the public, it must appear not only that the interests of the public generally, as distinguished from those of a particular class, require such interference, but also that the means are reasonably necessary for the accomplishment of the purpose and not unduly oppressive upon individuals. Lawful occupations cannot be arbitrarily interfered with by unusual and unnecessary restrictions established under the guise of protecting public interests. The determination of the legislature as to what constitutes a proper exercise of its police powers is not final or conclusive, but is subject to the supervision of the courts.

It could be urged as an objection to auction sales after sundown that noises and disturbances might be caused thereby which would unreasonably interfere with the quietness of the neighborhood. The statutes of the state do not lack in any particular proper safeguards for the peace and quiet of the community. The provisions of law in relation to disorderly conduct and disorderly assemblies and interference with public auctions in the daytime as well as nighttime and would apply to all public meetings. The law as to nuisance, both public and private, would protect the neighborhood from being unreasonably disturbed upon. In fact, it is hard to conceive how a public auction could be held in a reasonable and orderly manner than any other public meeting or gathering.

Judge Rosch says: "That the city unquestionably under these provisions of the statutes (City Charter and General City Law) had the right to pass an ordinance licensing auctioneers and regulating auctions in a reasonable manner is not questioned. Naturally, the legislature, in granting this power to enact an ordinance in relation to the regulation of auctions and auctioneers and the licensing of occupations and businesses, did not grant the right to adopt any unreasonable and unfair regulations. The legislature did not have that power itself."

After discussing various cases which have been passed on by the higher courts in relation to regulation of auctions and auctioneers, Judge Rosch says there does not appear to be even the suggestion of a reason for the provision of the ordinance in question, and after having even the subject some thought it is impossible to find any evil that would be prevented or good promoted by the provision of the ordinance referred to. An examination of the cases in other jurisdictions discloses that there are two cases holding that the provision of an ordinance similar to the foregoing is unconstitutional on the ground that it is an unreasonable restraint upon the conduct of a legitimate business.

The ordinance in question, says Judge Rosch, also attempts to regulate the sale of transient goods. The validity of such provisions might be doubtful in view of the holding of the court of appeals in the case of People ex rel. Moscovitz v. Jenkins (262 N. Y. 541). That question, however, is not here for determination except that in an examination of the opinion in Moscovitz case and from its reading one might be impressed with the language used in that opinion expressing condemnation of statutes and ordinances similar to the one under consideration.

The provision in this ordinance forbidding the conducting of auctions after sundown cannot be shown to be reasonable and constitutional legislation, says Judge Rosch.

"The presumption exists that the ordinance as adopted is constitutional and valid, but where the action of the legislature or common council is arbitrary and exceeds its power by interfering with the liberty of contract or the right to carry on business, then the court can declare the enactment unconstitutional. Such act, however, should not be based upon the mere fact that the court might differ with the legislature in its views of public policy, or that a judge might hold a law inconsistent with the propriety of the legislation. Ordinarily an injunction should not be granted during the pendency of an action determining the constitutionality of a provision of an ordinance or law. A court of equity, however, has jurisdiction to enjoin the enforcement of a municipal ordinance, upon the ground that it is unconstitutional, in cases where its enforcement would affect property rights and work irreparable injury."

"In this case it clearly appears to the court that there is no legal or valid objection to plaintiff's carrying on and continuing his legitimate business. There can be no doubt as to the invalidity of the portion of the ordinance complained of, and no resultant injury will be suffered by anyone through the granting of the injunction during the pendency of the action. The plaintiff is entitled to an injunction. There does not appear to be any reasonable excuse for the enactment or the existence of the provision of the ordinance in question."

"Application for temporary injunction granted."

NEW YEAR AT TEMPLE EMANUEL

Rabbi Kaplan Delivers Message of Renewed Hope and Pronounces Community Center Movement Deserving of Support.

New Year services were observed Sunday evening at Temple Emanuel, a large congregation being present. Dr. Bernard M. Kaplan, the rabbi of the congregation, delivered the message of the Jewish New Year, which is a renewal of Israel's faith in the ultimate triumph of justice and righteousness in the world.

"At no time was this message more needed than at the present time," said the rabbi. "We are apt to lose faith and grow pessimistic over conditions in the old world after all the sacrifices we made. But, as the poet says, God moves in a mysterious way. His wonders to perform. The scientist does not lose faith in his work, however baffled he may be by some incomprehensible processes of nature, and so the religious man must continue to have faith, hope or perplexed he may be by some strange events in history. God's ways are not our ways; His ways must lead ultimately to what is for the best of the world."

Dr. Kaplan also took occasion to refer to the needs of a Jewish community center, which would foster Judaism and Americanism, thus making good men and good women, good citizens and fine Americans of our boys and girls. He asked that the movement be heartily encouraged and supported. He also expressed appreciation of the good offices of the Jewish Welfare Board that sent a worthy representative here to help in the good work.

Cannibal Plant.
In the Indian territory is a remarkable parasite called the air plant. It will frequently find the ground covered with what seems luxuriant vegetation, for this plant has a rich foliage of deep and abundant green. However, if one finds one of these little twigs, he will find it attached to a strong woody stem. Continuing to lift it and following it for yards, he will find that the vine is not clinging to anything, but is simply lying upon other plants, and if he follows it its whole length he will come to the other end of the stem, without root and attached to nothing.
Under the plant will be only dead twigs and stems of other vegetation, for nothing can live under this sapping vine.

Irene Pavloska, noted prima donna of the Chicago Opera Co., adopted the family of Joseph Vacek, Chicago slaver, and then got Vacek pardoned from a twenty-five-year term he was serving. When he was 16, Vacek killed his father in defense of his mother. He was sentenced to Joliet (Ill.) prison, but escaped, took the name of Mahoney, became electrical engineer, married and was the father of a little baby. Recently an ex-policeman recognized him, and he was sent back to prison. Polish societies called the case to the attention of Pavloska, who became so interested she insisted on supporting the family and then sought so strenuously for Vacek's pardon he is now free.

LOCALS TRIUMPH OVER ASTOR CLUB

Winning Week-end Contests Set for Icknen Lead in Eight Game Series 5 to 3—Culliton and Forsythe Hurl Good Ball.

Whatever ambitious Manager Jim Buckley and his crew from Rhinebeck had entertained of capturing the Hudson Valley Semi-Pro championship were knocked into a cocked hat by the Colonials at the Fair Grounds Sunday afternoon. For the fifth time in eight games the Kingston team emerged victorious in the battles with the men from Dutchess county, this time by a score of 6 to 2.

Not even the mighty right arm of Rube Forsythe was enough to save the Rhinebeck from defeat. Rube was opposed by Bud Culliton, and the Fordhamite had all the better of the pitching argument. Four hits were all the Buckley clan could gather off the shoots of the Kingstonians, while Rube was found for eight by the men of Captain Schrick.

There were three home runs made during the affair, and two of them were made by Kingston men. The two of them, it might be added, were a bit lucky in nature, but they go down in the records as honors, even though they were not of the Babe Ruth or Roger Hornsby variety. As the poet says, a home's a homer for a' that.

Four big runs in the eighth inning gave the Kingston team the victory. Up to that time, the score had been 2 to 1 in favor of the Colonials, both Kingston runs coming in the first inning. A home run drive over the fence by Kelly, a newcomer on the Astors, gave the Rhinebeck team their second and last run of the game.

The Colonials got the jump on their rivals from across the river by pushing two runners over the plate in the first game. Bill Shay, whose batting average had taken a big jump in recent games, started proceedings for the Kingston Club by beating out a bunt. Bill then moved about to second when Wendell let one of Forsythe's slants get by him. On McPhee's infield out, the former Newburgher went to third. Matty Deegan fell a victim to Rube's deceptive ones, making two men down. Zengros drove one over Joe Haven's head, the ball rolling in the grass along the left field fence, and while Joe was hunting frantically for the great Shay crossed the rubber and the Giant rookie followed him.

The Astors came back in the second and put one run as their portion. Culliton couldn't find the plate for Kelly and sent him along on four wide ones. Steele sent a slow bouncer to McPhee, the third baseman throwing over Coyle's head and Kelly scored. Steele going to second, Elmer went to third when Carpenter laid down a bunt, but third was as far as Elmer got. Bud put on some extra steam and caused Estery and Havens to whiff the atmosphere.

There wasn't much doing in the scoring line for either side after the second. Forsythe was working with his old time skill and from the third inning until the eighth the Kingston men were unable to find Rube for a solitary safety. The Astor's first hit off Culliton came in the fourth, Steele getting a single to right with two men down. Bud yielded another hit in the fifth and another in the sixth, but none of the Rhinebeck men got beyond second. The Colonials found Rube in the eighth, however, and then and there put the game and the series in their old bag. After Shay had gone out McPhee hit one to right for a single and Matty Deegan, when Carpenter fumbled the ball, Deegan cracked a single past Estery. McPhee coming home on the hit and Matty taking second, Zengros went out on a grounder to Dewey, but Deegan reached home when Leonard dropped Terpening's fly in left. Coyle then cracked the ball past third base, and some way or other the ball never even stopped for the fence, rolling right through it. Bobby reed home in the wake of Terpening while Leonard was trying to figure out how the ball got through the fence.

Kelly got the only legitimate home run drive of the game to start the Rhinebeck half of the ninth, putting the ball over the right field barrier. That ended the scoring for the day.

Harry Seixas, president of the Interstate Empire Protective Association, was back on the job behind the bat Saturday and Sunday. Seixas got a nice reception from the crowd.

SATURDAY GAME GOES TO LOCALS

Spates, Giant Pitcher, Is Potent in 5

to 4 Victory for Colonials Over Rhinebeck Team.

Michael Spates, better known as Mike, formerly of Brown University and now a member of John J. McGraw's New York Giants, never wore a Colonial uniform before Saturday, but Mike made an auspicious debut as a Kingstonian Saturday afternoon. In addition to pitching the Colonials to a 5 to 4 victory over the Astors of Rhinebeck, Mike got a home run in the second—a lucky one it is true, but nevertheless a homer—and sent two runners in ahead of him. Enough for one day for a newcomer.

Mike had no easy time winning his game but the main fact is that he won it. Bill Pottenberg, the only native who sports a Rhinebeck uniform, was opposed to the former Brown man, and although Bill was hit harder than Mike, some wonderful support kept the Colonial runners off the base paths. At that it looked as if the men from across the river would stage one of those ninth inning rallies and put the skids under Captain Schrick's men, but they fell just a wee bit short.

Spates wasn't the only recruit belonging to McGraw who sported the Colonial livery Saturday. McPhee, third baseman, who has been seen here before, and another outfielder who has been playing with the Little Rock, Ark., team, Zengros by name, were also loaned by the Giants to the Kingston clan. Lew Wendell, another former member of McGraw's team, was the Rhinebeck representative of the New York club. It was thought that Manager Buckley of the Dutchess county squad would send "Giant" Robinson to the box, but Pottenberg's line work against the Red Hook team last week evidently caused the Rhinebeck pilot to switch his selection. Bill's willingness got him into trouble on a couple of occasions, but some good solid blows by the Kingston hitters were the main cause of his defeat.

The Colonials got away to a three run lead in the second inning, starting after two men were down. Jack Robins sent one to left for a single and Bill Schwab followed with one in the same direction. Spates hit the right field fence with a hot drive, the ball and the fence becoming tangled up in such a way that the ball couldn't get away. Spates made the round of the bases when Leonard finally extricated the pill and threw it to Estery, the ball taking a bad hop over the third baseman's head.

When the Astors crept up to within one run of the Colonials in the fifth things did not look so bright for the Kingston rooters. Carpenter, who has caused some trouble here before by hitting at the wrong time, sent one to center for a single.

Carpenter was forced when Shay took Estery's grounder and threw to Deegan, but Estery was safe on first. Leonard sent one against the fence in left field for two bases. Estery going to third, McDonald, all brought both men home when he shot a single to right. McDonald tried to stretch his hit to two bases and injured himself badly when he caught his spikes in the bag at second and was forced to leave the game.

Ten more runs for the Kingston clan in the sixth allowed the Colonial rooters to breathe easier. Pottenberg started the trouble for himself by walking Terpening, but Coyle forced him at second. Estery, whose play at third was the big fielding feature of the afternoon, threw over Dewey's head on Robins' grounder. Schwab kept up the good work by slamming one to left for two bases, sending Coyle and Robins home.

The Rhinebeck men died fighting and threw a big scare into the Colonial camp before the ninth was over. McPhee threw wild on Dewey's hit, and the latter reached second. Holly, another former big leaguer, scored him with a single to center. Wendell and Steele, both went out via the Shay-Coyle route. Holly scoring on Steele's out. Zengros took Carpenter's long drive for the final out.

Says His Defeat Was Due to Kick on

Ankle and Over-Confidence—

French Quickly Forget Their Idol and Praise Siki.

Paris, Sept. 25.—Among the post-mortems today on the startling knockout of Georges Carpentier, shattered idol of all Europe, in the sixth round yesterday by Battling Siki, the Senegalese, is a statement by Francois Deschamps in which the manager openly berates his charge for carelessness. In an exclusive interview with International News Service, Deschamps said:

"It was Carpentier's own fault he lost. He was showing off before the crowd and tried to play with Siki. He got careless and began trading punches with the black, and Siki caught Carpentier with a long left swing and Georges was never himself again. It was Georges's own fault. There was no excuse for it. It won't be Carpentier's last fight, contrary to reports circulated after the bout. He will come back to get revenge from Siki, if for no other reason, I cannot say when or where, but believe me, it will be soon."

The French press said farewell to Carpentier's career in varying terms but all omitted flowers. Lo Matin said:

"Carpentier was over-confident and under-trained. His career is over."

Petit Journal was equally unrelenting in its criticism of the de-throned heavyweight champion and idol. "Carpentier is not retiring from the ring," it said in part. "He is being retired."

The defeated boxer himself has another version of the affair, claiming that the referee was justified in making the original decision, which disqualified Siki for an alleged foul, and the judges wrong in subsequently reversing that verdict.

In an interview, written exclusively for International News Service, Carpentier said:

"I stand by the referee's first decision, disqualifying Siki. I was knocked down by Siki's kick on my ankle."

The Senegalese, meantime, is the man of the hour in Paris. Until an early hour this morning Siki was carried in triumph through the boulevards on the shoulders of his newly-created admirers, his progress being hailed with cheers by the throngs.

Americans here recall Siki as fighting at Bordeaux and other J. E. F. camps during the war. They evidently were not very much impressed by his ability at that time for some of them were among the heavy losers on the fight.

When asked about his next fight Siki declared his willingness to meet Jack Dempsey, world's heavyweight champion, in a bout for the title, but expressed a preference for trying conclusions with Harry Wills, the American negro first.

COACH SHUMWAY PICKS

P. H. S. VARSITY TEAM

Coach Conrad Shumway of the Poughkeepsie High School football team has picked the first combination which he will probably use, unless something happens during the week, against the St. Stephens second team at Poughkeepsie next Saturday.

The first combination presents a strong and sturdy line that should be a stone wall on the defense and a bunch of fast men on the offense. The team picked at the practice at Eastman Oval last night follows: Gregory, center; E. Knass and Keller, guards; Palmer and D'Luoch, tackles; Cahalan and Skinner, ends; Swenson, quarterback; Hill, captain, and Bruno, half-backs; and Campbell, fullback. The second team: Shanahan, center; Mintzer and Davison, guards; Jones and Becker, tackles; Fay and Henry, ends; Castonguay, quarterback; Rieder and Worden, half-backs, and Gilbert, fullback.

In the first combination it will be observed that Hill has been shifted from end of the backfield while Cahalan has been removed from tackle and played on end.

Secures Position.

Miss Pearl Short, an experienced graduate of Spencer's Business School, has secured a permanent position as stenographer and office assistant with Everett & Treadwell Company.

Confetti, Dance.

Tuesday evening Morris Muniz will hold a confetti dance at Clermont Hall, Wall and John streets, with an augmented orchestra.

Not a Thing in the World to Wear!

Time: Now

Scene: Anywhere

His Wife (firmly): I must have some new clothes.

Her Husband (craftily): My dear, you always look charming.

His Wife (ignoring this feeble attempt): Everything I have is wrong.

Her Husband (not so slow): Grant said last week that his wife says you are the best-dressed woman she knows.

His Wife (snatching victory from defeat): She did? Then I shall have to have new clothes.

Her Husband (this is the last stand): That blue crepe, my dear—

His Wife (wringing a tear from each eye): The blue crepe is too short and so is everything else I have. Last year's necklines are passe and so are last year's sleeves. My silver evening gown isn't even draped. All my waistlines are too low.

And you want me to wear my old clothes. . . . You don't care how I look.

You don't want me to be pretty. . . . You don't love me any more.

At this point Her Husband quietly gives up the discussion and his pocket-book.

You needn't be sorry for him. She makes all of her own clothes with the new McCall Pattern, it's printed.
